Big Speedup in Arms Predicted

Automobile Industry Holds Changes in New Cars To a Minimum.

WASHINGTON.—Defense officials predict a big speedup in the production of airplanes, tanks, guns and other war materials as a result of the automobile industry's decision to hold new model changes to a minimum.

President Alvan Macauley of the National Automobile association announced cancellation of the 1941 auto show because of the "defense situation." He said some changes in the 1942 car models could be expected where they will not interfere with the defense program. Defense officials here believed there would be few changes which would involve new machine tools.

William S. Knudsen, director of the office of production management, has warned the automobile industry that retooling for new models must be held to an absolute minimum because of the "terrible urgency" for machine tools, one of the serious rearmament shortages.

New Model Buying Heavy.

Defense commission experts, declining to be quoted, said information had reached them that the public, anticipating either cancellation or slight changes in 1942 models, are buying heavily of the current vintages. That puts the industry in a better position to make no wholesale changes in future models, they believed.

There were growing indications that the federal government might call upon the motor industry to an even greater extent in producing arms. The industry holds contracts for such things as tanks, plane parts, aircraft engines, various types of trucks and reconnaissance cars. It also will play a major part in efforts to develop production of medium and heavy bombers on a mass-production scale.

Workers Offer Plan.

Walter P. Reuther, head of the United Automobile Workers Organizing committee, has presented a plan which, he believes, can convert idle facilities of automobile into producing 500 warplanes daily. Defense officials believe portions of the plan are highly practicable, although they doubt that 500 planes daily can be built.

Ford Motor company, Chrysler corporation and Gmeral Motors corporation are preparing to turn out parts and accessories to be used by airplane companies in assembling medium and heavy bombers in four new army plants. The war department is expected to ask congress soon for an additional $1,000,000,000 to finance the first year of operation of this program.

Women in Great Britain Now Accept Woolen Hose

LONDON.—The English woman's prejudice against woolen stockings is rapidly being overcome.

With the new ban on silk and increased price of artificial silk stockings, English women are once again turning to their grandmother's friend—the humble woolen stocking.

And few are grumbling.

Long hours spent in air raid shelters and resultant cold feet have considerably helped wool manufacturers to start a new industry.

But the new stockings will not be the sagging, crumpled one of grandmother's day.

Experts of the British color council at a meeting with wool manufacturers recently decided the fashionable fate of the feminine Britain.

Stockings will be made in the finest possible wools that flatter the calf-line.

They will be available in every possible modern shade, not only flesh and the darker shades but pastel green, light pastel blue, in fact, all pastel shades and every other color from pale lawns to browns and blacks.

Shades of History Drawn on Theaters

Once Popular Texas Opera Houses Disappear.

AUSTIN, TEXAS. — The "opera house," once the gathering place in Texas for amusements, commencement exercises, political conventions and prize fights, is becoming extinct.

Many of the old opera houses still exist as buildings, but they have been remodeled and turned to other uses.

Passing of the opera house in Texas began with the advent of vaudeville houses and the movies. Some were turned into picture houses and still furnish a stage for the one-night road shows that tour the Southwest. City auditoriums now get the grand operas and the bigger stage shows.

Many of the old opera houses no longer are devoted to any type of entertainment. Some have been remodeled into stores or office buildings. Some house industries. Over a few the lyre and the mask remain as reminders of earlier days.

"Opera House" is found lettered on the front of many a present-day Texas mercantile building in small-or Texas towns.

Famous among the old playhouses, the Hancock Opera house in Austin still entertains as a second-run picture show. On its boards the great of the stage appeared from 25 to 50 years ago.

Greenwall's Fort Worth Opera house gave way to the Byers Opera house in the flush days of cattle and oil development. Both were superseded by vaudeville houses, and now by movie palaces.

San Antonio's oldest playhouse became the Casino club and later a storehouse for supplies of the city water department.

Burlesque houses, where the cowboys could drink while they applauded the show, disappeared before the opera house.

Utah Pioneer Keeps Pace With Modern Progress

SALT LAKE CITY.—"A lot of people are dying around 70, but not people are dying around 90," muses W. B. Richards Sr. as he sweeps the snow off his front sidewalk. He himself is older than the city in which he lives.

Richards, the son of one of the men who accompanied Brigham Young when he first viewed this valley, was born in 1867 in a Nebraska settlement—Winter Quarters—where the Mormons camped until spring.

He was a year and a half old when he followed his father, Willard Richards—second counselor in the L. D. S. Church to Brigham Young—into the then small but thriving community.

Richards has kept pace with modern developments that have come to the Utah capital. "I like to drive a car," says the spry nonagenarian. However, he hastens to add, he hasn't driven for a "long time"—not since he was 80.

Vegetable Laxative Makes Happy Friends

Here's a laxative that usually acts thoroughly as harsher ones but is a gentle persuader for intestines when used this way: A quarter to a half-teaspoonful of spicy, aromatic BLACK-DRAUGHT on your tongue tonight; a drink of water. There's usually time for a good night's rest, with a gentle, thorough action next morning relieving constipation's headaches, biliousness, sour stomach, bad breath.

BLACK-DRAUGHT is a splendid combination of vegetable ingredients, chief of which is an "intestinal tonic-laxative" that helps impart tone to lazy bowel muscles. It's economical. 25 to 40 doses: 25c.

The calling in the home of Mrs. D. L. Smith were Mr and Mrs. Alec Gobbin, Mr. ve the parents of the American people. In providing them with low-cost transportation for the past 38 years, we have developed one of the country's largest and most useful industrial units. During a national emergency, we feel that these facilities should be devoted without reserve to our country's needs. Toward that end we started rolling months ago, with these results:

1 A $21,000,000 Ford airplane engine factory, started only 6 months ago, is nearly completed. Production will start with an initial order for 4,236 eighteen cylinder, air-cooled, double-row, radial engines.

2 We are building a new $800,000 Ford magnesium alloy foundry, one of the few in the country. It is already producing lightweight airplane engine castings.

3 Army reconnaissance cars — military vehicles of an entirely new type — are rolling off special Ford assembly lines at the rate of more than 600 a month. We have produced Army staff cars and bomber service trucks.

4 The government has given the "go-ahead" and work is now under way for the fast construction of an $11,000,000 Ford plant to produce bomber airframe assemblies by mass production methods.

5 Several months ago work was started, on our own initiative, on an entirely new 1500 horsepower airplane engine especially designed for mass production. This engine is now in the test stage and plans are being developed for producing it in large quantities when and if needed.

6 A Ford aircraft apprentice school has been established, to train 2000 students at a time.

That is a report of progress to date.

The experience and facilities of this company can be used to do much of the job which America now needs to get done in a hurry.

Our way of working, which avoids all possible red tape, enables us to get results and get them fast. This benefits users of our products and workers who produce them.

We are ready to make anything we know how to make, to make it to the limit of our capacity if need be, to make it as fast as we can go, and to start the next job whenever our country asks us to. And to this end, we know we have the full confidence and loyal support of the workmen throughout our plants.

Girls Are Advised To Build-Up For Relief
Lack of knowledge causes many a weak, undernourished girl a lot of suffering!
Many others, however, know how the headaches, nervousness, cramps—the pain of functional dysmenorrhea due to malnutrition are helped by the proper use of CARDUI.
Some take it a few days before and during "the time," to help ease periodic distress. But CARDUI should not be to help increase appetite; stimulate the flow of gastric juices; so aid digestion, assist in building up physical resistance and thus help reduce periodical distress. Women have used CARDUI for over 50 years.

Rabbit's Nest Found in Tree at 12-Foot Level

BUFFALO.—Discovery of a nest of cottontail rabbits 12½ feet up an inclined tree on Grand Island is reported by Prof. Albert R. Shadle and two of his assistants in the University of Buffalo biology department.

In an article in an issue of the Journal of Mammalogy, Professor Shadle and his assistants describe how they found the nest on the east side of the island, which lies in the Niagara river between the United States and Canada.

The biological group was climbing a willow to photograph the nest of a mourning dove when they came upon a nest of grass in a crotch containing five young rabbits. Because of the 46-degree inclination of the bole, the adult rabbit had to travel 12½ feet from the ground to reach her nest.

Professor Shadle said that within a week all the young rabbits had left the nest.

Recent literature contains numerous references to groundhogs, foxes and other terrestrial animals seen in trees, but this is believed to be the first nest of cottontails found at so great a height.

Rancher Loses Goat Herd, Uses Plane for Spotting

MINERAL WELLS, TEXAS.—J. N. Marshall, a student pilot and a goat fancier, has found a way to combine his pleasure with business.

Recently Marshall lost his herd of goats in the rugged mountains of Palo Pinto county. He rode horseback "all over the ranch."

"I couldn't find those dern goats anywhere, so I decided I'd just go after them in a plane," he said.

He went to the airport, found his instructor, and the two took off for a search of the ranch. The goats were located from the air and later driven to other pastures by mounted herders.
